Volume Seventeen
The Senior Class

*Seven Springs High School
Seven Springs, North Carolina*

Foreword

Throughout our years of school, we have looked to the big year—the senior year! Now we find it is only the beginning. Perhaps in this yearbook we can capture a few of the bright, wonderful memories for the years to come. These are the happy times, and we hope this annual will always bring them back to you.

Dedication

We, the 1964 Seniors of Seven Springs High School, being grateful and appreciative, wish to honor someone whom we feel sure has devoted his time and patience to each of us throughout our four years in high school. The understanding of this one has surely been an asset to each of us. We know that we shall never forget the many times that he has given us his encouragement and has been an inspiration to each of us. His patience has enticed us to realize that we had to learn by doing in order to reach the achievement of our goals.

With the realization of his helpfulness and encouragement, we wish to dedicate our 1964 SESPRISCHOAN to MR. WALTER L. CREEL, who has devoted 32 years of his life to teaching.

Curriculum

The mechanics of grammar are essential if we are to become good speakers and writers. We try to improve ourselves during this year.

We also study English literature from Anglo-Saxon times to modern times. Our most vivid memory is "Whan that Aprille" from Chaucer's CANTERBURY TALES.

The fundamentals of French are sometimes not-so-easy for us in French II, but as time passes we grasp this strange language. Then we realize that English is for us at times just the same.

We go from years and years B.C. to the present time in this course. We study about the wars, emperors, and philosophers of years gone by. We do wonder how Plato could be so great or the Leaning Tower of Pisa so famous!

Oh, those X's, Y's, and Z's! There is a wonderful satisfaction in solving a problem that "almost" had Mr. Creel stumped.

It's fun to type and we enjoy it, but when we look at some of our final drafts, we wonder if we will ever be experts. Mr. Shivar helps us very much, and maybe we'll make it, after all.

Here we learn the principles of physics. This course, which involves the study of the efficiency of machinery, atomic energy, and molecular structure is very difficult. Perhaps, with Mr. Baker's guidance we can conquer it.

Here we are getting a better understanding of our bodies. Mr. Herring is strict, but it is for our own good. Perhaps by the end of the year our bodies will be improved physically.

This is the only period the girls are allowed to take agriculture. I wonder if we get on Mr. Shivar's nerves?

We are learning some of the basic rules of mathematics in business math. It is not a hard course, but it increases our efficiency and skill in the fundamental processes of adding, subtracting and multiplying!

All of life subsists on the productivity of our soil. Learning how to better utilize it is just one of the phases of endeavor we study in our agriculture classes.

Mr. Baker is endeavoring day after day to teach us science in preparation for the coming years of high school and perhaps college. We try..., and where there is a will there must be a way.

JULIUS CAESAR and SILAS MARNER were really rough but we managed them as well as the rest of our literature. We continue to build onto our grammar foundations begun in past years.

Poem

We, the class of '64
Are now approaching an open door.
Beyond that door there lies a hall
With many doors on either wall.
We shall each open a door of our own,
And choose a future yet unknown.
Which shall we choose; college life,
To be a husband or a wife?
Each shall go his separate way,
But we shall take a vow today;
No matter where our future lies.
The fond memory never dies,
Of Seven Springs, and '64,
And that long remembered open door.

Class History

In September of the year 1952, a group of excited six-year-olds gathered at the port of Seven Springs to board the ship "Education." These happy youngsters sailed through the rough seas of elementary knowledge for eight long years with many experienced pilots to guide them. The ship called again at the dock in Seven Springs in 1960 and refueled for the journey into high school. Ahead lay the difficult task of getting schedules straight and the realization that this journey was vastly different from our last one. Our pilot this time was Mrs. Imogene Price. We chose Greg Smith, Larry Smith, Annette Daly, Iris Price, and Sallie Deaver for our leaders.

By the time we entered the second part of this new journey, we had become more confident and aware of what we had ahead of us. Now Mr. Gerald Waters was our pilot. We once again chose our leaders. They were Judy Flowers, Wayne Edwards, June Price, and Lester Cruse.

We were well on our way toward the end of the voyage. Now we rated the title of "juniors." This, we felt, was one of the most eventful years of our trip. Once again we changed pilots. Mr. Dixon Hall now steered our course, with Greg Smith, Judy Flowers, Sallie Deaver, Rena Maier, and Lester Cruse guiding our activities. This year we had a tobacco drive and numerous bake sales. We also sold candy and Seven Springs stickers. The big event of the year was our Junior-Senior Banquet. We honored the Seniors in Hawaiian Style at the Hotel Goldsboro. We were also very much pleased with the results of our Junior Play.

Now we are approaching our long-worked-for destination. Mrs. Imogene Price is our pilot and we chose Greg Smith as our Captain with Jimmy Vinson, Sallie Deaver, Rena Maier, Iris Price, and Judy Flowers to help him lead us.

The first highlight of the year was our classings. We were all glad to get them. A second highlight of the year was the publication of the 1964 SESPRISCHOAN. As a prologue to publication, annual ads had to be sold. We had already had practice in salesmanship earlier this year with our magazine drive which was very successful. The juniors honored us with a very lovely banquet which we will all long remember. Another highlight of our Senior year was the trip to Washington, D. C. and New York. The Juniors and Seniors alike all had a wonderful time.

We are just rounding the bend, and the shore is in sight. This voyage seems short; and as we look back, it carries many wonderful memories of S. S. H. S. that we will long cherish. When at graduation we leave this ship "Education" there will be new goals before us but we will never lose the hope for a brighter future because as our motto says "Everyday gives another chance."

Prophecy

As I landed in my '74 capsule, I could see that Seven Springs had not changed in the ten years since high school.

It was getting dark so I hurried down to rent a car before they were all taken. Our class was having a reunion, and I knew there would be several of my old classmates who would need one also. As I walked in, I saw Sally and Allen Deaver. Sally and her husband had started the car rental business in Seven Springs. Their little twin girls came out and I could see that Sally and Allen had much to make them happy.

As I came out, I saw Jones's Restaurant down the street. I remembered that Carolyn Jones had opened it after being graduated from College. It was rumored that she might start a national chain. Douglas Jones and his wife were also partners in the business in addition to their farm work. Nell McCullen stepped out with three small children. She and her husband managed the restaurant and enjoyed it.

I stepped inside the restaurant, and there was Judy Flowers with her husband Robert. Judy was keeping house now while Bub worked for the F. C. C. in Washington.

Lester Cruse came in with his wife and children. Lester had become quite wealthy farming in recent years, and he now owned a big white mansion down by the Springs. Of course, he needed room for all eight of his red-haired children.

Later, as I entered the hotel to rent a room, I saw June Price and her husband. They were living in Asheville teaching high school now. June invited me to come to their rooms later, along with some more of our old classmates, for a late party to celebrate our seeing each other once more.

Going up to my room I suddenly realized that this was the hotel Royce Potter owned, and I remembered that he was a candidate for the state legislature.

Greg Smith and Jimmy Vinson were coming down the hall as I started to my room. They had left their wives getting ready for the party, and were talking over old times. Greg's face was a familiar one for he was in the news quite often. On Wall Street he had stopped a recession just recently by expressing faith in the economy. Jimmy was now an executive at Du Pont.

Jimmy and Greg said that they were waiting for Larry Smith, and just then he came in towing three little blonde-haired girls. Laughingly, he said that he hoped his wife would hurry because his daughters were almost a match for him.

When I reached my room, I walked to the window, and down below I could see the bright lights of Dorothy Blakely's house. She was reputed to be the best cook for miles around. Her husband works in Malcolm Mervin's garage.

The party was in full swing when I entered. Ruth Ann Worrell caught my eye at once. She was a housewife now, but she still looked like a schoolgirl. All of the men were crowded around someone, and after a few minutes I discovered that Roy Hines was holding their attention. He had discovered oil on his land and now was one of the richest men in the state.

Then Iris Price came in, looking like the model she was. Soon it was rumored that she was going to give up her career and marry her childhood sweetheart without changing her name. She said that Faye Best would be coming soon. I had heard that Faye was still going to school. It seemed that she had decided not to marry yet.

After our reunion, as I was going back to my job in Europe, I thought with content of my classmates leading their varied lives, and I knew that they were happy in the lives that they had chosen.

Last Will and Testament

We, the 1964 Senior Class of Seven Springs High School, being of sound mind and strong bodies do hereby declare this to be our last will and testament.

To our school we leave our hopes that the future classes of Seven Springs will be neat, respectful, studious, and mature for this school has endured much in this and years past.

To our faculty we leave our many thanks for the hours they have spent teaching us while we thought of ways to speed the clock up and do away with homework.

To the eighth grade we leave our hopes that high school will be a happy four years.

To the freshmen we leave our sincere sympathy for the years ahead.

To the sophomores we leave the courage to make the years of life an exciting challenge.

To the juniors we leave the memories of the many times we have shared. We bequeath these personal possessions as follows:

- I, FAYE BEST, will my ability to keep up my grades to Jimmy Best.
- I, DOROTHY BLAKELY, will my ability to sit in class and be quiet to Pansy Price.
- I, NELL McCULLEN, will my ability to eat in Mr. Baker's study hall to anyone who can get away with it.
- I, LESTER CRUSE, will my ability to drive the activity bus without tearing it up to Mike Dawson.
- I, SALLY DEEVER, will my ability to get married and still finish school to anyone who wants to try it.
- I, JUDY FLOWERS, will all of my patience to go through twelve years of school and still enjoy it to anyone who needs patience.
- I, ROY HINES, will my ability to graduate to Bobby Hines.
- I, CAROLYN JONES, will my grades to Peggy Jones in secure knowledge that she will not need them.
- I, DOUGLAS JONES, will my ability to go to school for twelve years without missing a day to anyone who has the nerve to.
- I, RENA MAIER, will my ability to giggle in class to Kay Lynch.
- I, MALCOLM MERVIN, will my ability to get good conduct grades to Ervin Parks.
- I, ROYCE POTTER, will my height to Glen Rouse.
- I, IRIS PRICE, will my ability to play first string basketball to Dwight Price.
- I, JUNE PRICE, will my good grades to Vickie Price in hopes that she won't need them.
- I, GREG SMITH, will my good times on the basketball court to my younger brother.
- I, LARRY SMITH, will my manager's job to anyone who doesn't mind cleaning basketballs.
- I, RUTH ANN WORRELL, will my business math book to anyone who will have it.
- I, JIMMY VINSON, will my ability to play first string basketball to Travis Adams.

This document is signed and sealed by the Senior Class.

Our girls, having filled the expectations of a winning team, show promise of doing so in the future. The girls, who have compiled an outstanding conference record (7-1), have the desire to go on and win the conference tournament. They have displayed a good show of sportsmanship, hustle, and team spirit and they will continue to do so.

Boys' Basketball Team

Kneeling: Sidney Phillips, Malcolm Price, Jimmy Vinson, Jimmy Garris, Greg Smith. Standing: Travis Adams, Wayne Sutton, Danny Griffin, Bobby Grant, Bill Price, Douglas

Hill, Gerald Garris, Jerry Smith, Dwight Price, Glenn Rouse.

Thus far the varsity team has been highly successful. The Wildcats have posted a 7-0 conference record. The team's success is largely due to the hustle, desire to win and the team spirit among its players. The balance attack among the starting five has also been a key to success. One of the highlights of the season was defeating arch-rival, New Hope, 91-76.

To introduce the elementary section of our annual we felt that it was only appropriate to show our gratitude to one who has devoted twenty-six years to the teaching of the children of our school district. Our lives are richer and fuller today because of her.

Miss Gillerlain retired from teaching first grade at Seven Springs School in September, 1963. However, she has not stopped the wonderful work she is able to do for the little ones. She is now teaching in a private kindergarten.

To us seniors she will always be remembered as an integral part of the years of our growing up.

Miss Gillerlain, we love you.

IT NEVER ENDS!

A big step is in store for you! When you are awarded your high school diploma, you will have completed only one step in your education cycle. As in high school, you will find your future education challenging and rewarding in molding your careers. Additional educational opportunities are available and the responsibility is yours to take advantage of them.

Leading members of the business world have stressed that what a man knows after completion of high school is not nearly so important to his ultimate success as what he studies later. In this age of changing times, the learning process never ends. The emphasis on learning after high school offers a promise of a good future for today's graduates.
